

Amy Perrin Ross, APN, MSN, CNRN, MSCN
President
International Organization of Multiple Sclerosis Nurses

Amy Perrin Ross is a board-certified Neuroscience Nurse and is the Neuroscience Program Coordinator at Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood, Illinois, U.S.A. She obtained her Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree from Loyola University School of Nursing, Chicago, Illinois, and a Master of Science in Nursing from the Graduate School of Nursing of Loyola University, U.S.A.

Amy is an advanced practice multiple sclerosis (MS) nurse who coordinates the MS clinic at Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood Illinois. In her role she has coordinated multiple clinical research trials in MS. She is a Member of the Consortium of Multiple Sclerosis Centers and the Multiple Sclerosis Nursing International Certification Board. Amy is the President of the International Organization of Multiple Sclerosis Nurses (IOMSN). She has authored numerous articles and book chapters on MS and dementia.

In addition, Amy is a Clinical Nurse Consultant with the National Multiple Sclerosis Society (NMSS), a Member of the Health Care Advisory Council for the Multiple Sclerosis Association of America and a former Board Member of the Consortium of Multiple Sclerosis Centers. She has been an invited speaker at numerous meetings and conferences and has been very active in neuroscience clinical research for over 20 years.

Amy is also certified by the American Board of Neuroscience Nurses and by the Multiple Sclerosis Nursing International Certification Board.